

Rafael Lozano Ascencio, MD, MSc

Director, Center for Health Systems Research, National Institute of Public Health, Mexico

Professor of Global Health, Institute for Health Metrics and Evaluation, University of Washington

Director of Center for Health Systems Research at the National Institute of Public Health. Mexico and Professor of Global Health at the Institute for Health Metrics and Evaluation (IHME) at the University of Washington.

Prior to joining IHME, Dr. Lozano worked for seven years at the Ministry of Health in Mexico as the General Director of Health Information, where he coordinated the Health Information System for the Ministry of Health and the production of national health statistics, coordinating information from a number of health sector institutions in Mexico.

Dr. Lozano has been a leading contributor to epidemiological statistics, theory, and methods. He worked at the World Health Organization (WHO) in Geneva as Senior Epidemiologist for the Global Program on Evidence for Health Policy for three years, and at Mexico's National Institute of Public Health, where he headed the Department of Epidemiology and the Division of Epidemiological Transition.

Dr. Lozano is member of the National Research System (Level II) and he is also member of the National Academy of Medicine of Mexico. Dr. Lozano has also brought his wealth of experience to numerous expert and advisory groups, including the Core Group of the Global Burden of Disease 2010 Study, the Technical Advisory Group for the WHO's Health Metrics Network, and the Pan American Health Organization's Health Statistics Advisory Committee.

He holds a MD and a Master's in Social Medicine both from Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México. Dr. Lozano has published more than 80 peer-reviewed articles on his research.